

Dear Fenway Community Members:

Over the weekend, Joseph Biden was declared the winner of the 2020 Presidential Elections. With this win, Vice President-elect Kamala Harris has made history as the first Black and Indian-American woman to be elected into this important office. As a local non-profit, committed to housing access and social justice in our community, we know that this declaration of a winner brings relief and a general sense of calm-- regardless of for whom or how you voted.

Over the past year, Fenway CDC has witnessed how much our neighborhood can overcome when we move together, unified in our commitment to community. From the COVID-19 pandemic to the resurgence of the Movement for Black Lives; eviction moratoriums to the 2020 Census, we know that the strength and resiliency of The Fenway is durable.

This year, Massachusetts set records due to early and mail-in voting options. In Suffolk County alone, over 300,000 voters cast ballots. Though the election is over, our work does not end here. As a community, we must continue to fight against systemic inequities, call for a truly affordable city, and commit to advocating and advancing racial justice at every level of our work. With the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, it is critical that we continue to support one another and local Fenway businesses. We protect ourselves when we protect each other.

Fenway CDC is dedicated to continuing our work, both internally and externally, to ensure a more equitable and safe community. With our mission in mind, to improve lives and build community, we look forward to a new year of bringing people together by developing affordable housing, providing programs that enrich lives, and strengthening community voices.

In solidarity,
Fenway CDC
